Among all the comments called out by President Lincoln's Proclamation of Enumerpation, nothing is more pointed than the following extract from an article by Henry Ward Beecher in Isst work's Independent: "The decree of enumerical interaction is the dividing line between a dark past and a hopeful future. The sun crosses the equator, traveling northward. The days hereafter will grow longer and the nights shorter."

An account of a tremendous hall storm of West Lawin ton and Easterton, Ragland, is published in the London Times of the 5th. The hall fell to the astonished depth of seven inches in less than half an hour.

Mr. F. Gomez, of New York, has invented a new kind of gunpowder, composed principally of iron. He claims that it is more powerful than my other, less liable to burst the gun, and makes less smoke. By the surrender of Harper's Ferry, the reb-cles took 14,500 men, rations for 14,000 men for 20 days, 100 tons of armunition, 57 guns, (some of which were the best Parrott's,) 14,000 stand of arms, and 4 batteries of artiflery.

When the body of Col. Fletcher Webster was committed to the tomb at Marshfield, the undertaker, at the request of the family, opened the coffin containing the remains of Danies Webster. Decay had naturally done its work, but the marked peculiarities of that massive head and face were clearly distinguishable.

It is a curious coincidence, well worthy of remark, that the recent battle fought by Gan. Me-Clellan took place on the 17th of September—the very day on which, seventy-five years ago, the Constitution of the United States was signed and adopted. This battle was fought on the one side for the preservation of this invaluable instrument, which has conferred so many lasting blessings on the human race, and on the other for its destruction, with all the benefits attendant upon it.

We publish this week another Proclamation from the President. It is an evidence of the carnestness with which he means the war shall now be prosecuted, and will put an end to the half-treasonable utterances and measures which have hitherto so successfully impeded the Government. It was needed, and comes not a moment too soon. It is on the first page.

A private letter from Mr. Chas Wright, on the gunbont Benton, to his sister in Rochester, N. Y., gives an amusing account of an interview with a lumber man, up the Yazue river, who had never heard of the troubles about secession, and received his first intimation that way was raging from our forces on the gunboat. He had been in the gum swamps for four years; during a large portion of the time he had not seen a single human being. When he met our gunboats and heard of the war he was much astonished, as may well be supposed. He was on his way at the time to Vicksburg, to secure a market for his lumber.

the Philadelphia Enquirer says: The entire number of troops called for by the President of the United States has been one million two hundred thousand. The quota for the city of Philadelphia, under all calls, was 33,414. The men credited to the city (up to Friday, 12th of Sept.) were 29,094. The deficiency on Friday last, was therefore 4,320. The volunteer enlistments from now until Sept. 19th will be deducted from this deficit, and the difference will be the number to be raised by draft on Saturday, 19th. The enlistments on Friday and Saturday, 12th and 13th, were two hundred and forty.
